

SURREAL POETICS

The resolution of dream and reality into a kind of absolute reality
... a surreality. (Andre Breton, Manifesto of Surrealism, 1924)

In poetry, an image must . . .
be derived from the fracture of images.
~ Socrates Martinis

"NORD"

In the light that ages
within the eyes' incense
the brush land of the area
of the Northern gaze
on the moment of spasms
is flaming
with the smell of burned hair

~ ABOUT THE POET ~

Socrates Martinis was born in Athens, Greece in 1984. "Nord" comes from his collection North. He crafts experimental works of sound, poetry, prose and sketches with blue ink. He regards the poetic function as an attempt to pull the infinity of the objective towards the subject, like the funnel that fills the bottle through its thin end during a liquid transfer. You can find Socrates on Twitter at @s_martinis.